Title: Taking Technology to Market

Technology dominates our culture like in no other time in human history. Information on almost any subject is available any where on the planet to any one within seconds. The story of how this technology was brought to the market place is equally amazing. This presentation will detail a short history on the role that RCA and Sarnoff corporations played in this story as seen through the life of one of its technology leaders. More of this story is available at TCNJ in the Sarnoff Collection. The presentation will also look at what the future may have in store for the next generation of technologists.
